PARENTS

What is the Pilot Program?

The Prepared Parents Pilot Program is a community of parents that have a direct impact on the work we do at Prepared Parents. Over the course of a six-week program, parents test and review a collection of Tips, Tools, and Activities, giving direct feedback on how useful they are as parenting resources.

We invite you to join the program! Strengthen your confidence as a parent, while also giving us the insights we need to improve our resources.

This past school year was unlike any other. As we get ready to support parents this fall, your feedback is more crucial than ever in allowing us to meet the needs of all parents as they go into another uncertain school year.

“At the end of the day, I want my kids to be good human beings. I want them to know who they are, what they care about, and how to chase after it. And, I believe all children deserve that opportunity.”

Mira Habiby Browne

Co-founder & Executive Director of Prepared Parents

What is Prepared Parents?

At Prepared Parents, we believe there's another way to prepare our kids for happy, fulfilled lives. Our mission is to translate the science of fulfillment into actionable tools and bite-sized tips and routines to help you raise kind, independent, and resilient kids.

The Prepared approach helps kids build skills through real-world learning, self direction, positive relationships, and collaboration. But figuring out how to develop these habits in our children is a challenge for all of us.
